1962-1969

Memories from Dolores Dean and Ira Fuller:

1962 - Organized in June 1962.

- Local businessman Gene Clark, later the first squad Captain, approached the Wendell Lion's Club.
  - He presented the need for a rescue squad in eastern Wake County.
  - Lions Club voted to support the project, and pledged $300 toward the project and the purchase of a vehicle.
  - Same Gene Clark that later started Raleigh Ambulance Service in 1965?
- After receiving the support of the Lions Club, Clark held the first organizational meeting in the old courtroom on Main Street.
  - The squad had fifteen or sixteen charter members.
  - Incorporation filed with state on July 23, 1962.
    - Three directors are listed, each members of the Lion's Club:
      - Normal L. Dean
      - Shelton V. Bridgers.
      - Everette A. Ledford Jr.
- First vehicle was a 1949 Dodge van, a surplus Postal Service vehicle.
  - Purchased at a government sale in Raleigh.
  - Competing bidder didn't realize that a rescue squad was trying to win the bid, so the squad had to raise theirs by one cent to win.
  - Squad members painted the truck, and outfitted the vehicle to serve as an ambulance.
- Second vehicle was a used Pontiac hearse purchased from MK Davis Ambulance Sales in Raleigh.
  - Model year might've been 1952.

- First location was near the intersection of Main Street and Campen Street, with the original ambulance (and later vehicles) parked beside the railroad tracks.
  - Second location was behind the newly built Town Hall and fire station at Pine and 4th Streets, which opened in September 1963.
  - Later housed the squad's 1969 Ford station wagon inside the bays, parked between two fire engines.
  - Later shelter added behind the fire station, to house the 1971 SWAB ambulance.
  - Note: City directories of that era listed the squad's early addresses as 29 E. 4th Street and later 361 E. 3rd Street.
- Funding during these early years was entirely community donated. To the best of their knowledge, no county funding was provided in those early years.
  - Money was raised by radiothons and private donations.
    - By December 1972, the town had been donating $300 each year to the squad for several years. (GLF, 12/7/72)
    - County subsidies of rescue squads had started by 1973. (WCAB)
  - Wake County Commission Vassar Shearon was very involved with helping the squad to start receiving county financial support.
- Squad was the first formed in eastern Wake County, and the service area was large:
  - West, from the Neuse River Bridge on Highway 64.
  - East, from the Nash County side of Zebulon.
  - South, to the Archers Lodge area.
  - North, to Rolesville.
- Calls were usually major incidents: car accidents, heart attacks, medical emergencies, and farm pond drownings.
  - And there were few people to answer the calls.
  - Squad was strictly volunteer.
  - There were no duty crews. Members responded from work or from home.
  - They answered only one call at a time.
  - Calls were infrequent in the early years, some times as long as a week or two without a call.
- Squad used CB radios to communicate.
  - Later installed an electric siren on the water tower, to notify members of calls.
  - Once they had pagers, calls were dispatched from Wendell Town Hall.
- Members performed minimal first aid in those first years.
  - Squad served mostly as “scoop and go.”
  - There were no regulations requiring certification of ambulance attendants.
  - Members, however, each pursued their own first aid training, and typically took as many and as advanced first aid courses as were available.

1967 – Squad purchased their first new vehicle, a 1967 Ford Econoline van. Cost $1,700.

1967 – September, 14 – Newspaper story. “Wendell Squad Not Providing Ambulances.” Captain Robert Clark says that a number of people “apparently think the squad does provide ambulance service.” [e.g., medical transport.] They’ve received several calls asking the squad to “dispatch a vehicle to transport an ill person.” And in some cases, they’ve been requested to transport to places as far away as Durham. “The Wendell Rescue Squad is not in the ambulance business” says the story. (N&O, 9/14/67)

1969 – Squad received their second new vehicle a 1969 station wagon donated on loan from Champion Motors of Wendell. The owner of dealership was Mr. Velton Champion.

- Vehicle was used for a couple years, then returned to the dealership.
