Cumberland	Bonnie Doone FD	Fayetteville	Merged with Fayetteville FD	1956	1998		Bonnie Doone Rural Volunteer Fire Department, Inc., was formed after a community meeting in 1955. The department organized in March 1956. The first fire station was a trailer loaned by Joe Dyer, with a telephone installed and a siren mounted on a pole. The first fire engine was purchased from Army surplus. The first fire station was built in 1958 at 140 Swain Street, county Station 8. In 1960, either a substation was opened on Yadkin Road, or a separate Yadkin Road FD organized. In 1976, YRFD relocated to a new station at 5091 Santa Fe Drive. In 1986, the Swain Street station was closed and BRFD relocated to Santa Fe Drive (or merged with YRFD). The station was expanded and the response district renamed as BRFD. By November 1988, discussions were underway about merging BRFD assets and resources with the city. That month, city council passed a joint resolution for The Planning of the Orderly and Staged Transfer of Assets and Resources of the Bonnie Doone Fire District and Fire Department to the City of Fayetteville and Fayetteville Fire Department. In September 1995, the city opened a police substation in half of the BDFD building, to provide services to an area recently annexed by the city. By that time, the city had annexed 46 percent of the BDFD response area, and had an agreement with BDFD to fund some of their operational costs, and hire some of the BDFD firefighters. The city planned to take complete control of BDFD in three more years. BDFD ceased operation on June 30, 1998, after another annexation by the city. Its assets were transferred to the Fayetteville FD, including their fire station which became Fayetteville Station 9. The city also hired 14 paid members of BFD. With the annexation, FFD agreed to provide protection to about 25 percent of the former BDFD district not included in the annexation. At the time of the merger, the city had been paying 58 percent of the BDFD annual budget. BDFD filed for corporate disillusion on Feb. 17, 1999. Cumberland	Lake Upchurch FD	Fayetteville	Assets merged with Stoney Point FD	1980	1988		Lake Upchurch Fire Department, Inc. was formed in 1980, after splitting with the department that became Stoney Point FD. The department incorporation filing recorded in 1981. By the late 1980s, LUFD lacked adequate funds, staff, and equipment to operate. It was the smallest volunteer FD in Cumberland County, collecting only $6,123 from its tax district in 1987. On Dec. 29, 1987, the LUFD board voted to dissolve the department, and turn its assets over to Stoney Point FD. County officials approved the merger on the Tuesday on/before Jan 21, 1988. MFD disbanded in 1998, after the board voted in Oct. 1998 to turn fire protection in the district over to the county. The town of Spring Lake was, in turn, contracted to protect the district. The department faced a dwindling roster of firefighters, including a number of volunteers who were military, and not always able to respond. In September 1998, the county had given MFD thirty days to correct problems, after a state insurance official was not allowed to conduct a scheduled inspect, and the department had a slow response to a fire call and with a sparse number of resources. The day before the county's deadline, MFD notified officials of their decision to shut down. The department's assets were absorbed by Spring Lake FD.
